DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Takashima et al. (US Patent 5,588,544). Takashima et al. teaches the basic method claimed as follows: providing a resin core member (2A), i.e. finish ring, and a core mold, wherein the gap between the core member (2A) and the core mold is at least 0.5 mm (column 4, lines 2-4); setting the core member (2A) in a neck mold (32) and providing a core mold (33) and body mold (34); intruding bottle resin material into the body mold (34) by extruding and compressing to make a preform body (column 6, lines 10-15), where the core member (2a) is molded with the preform body (see Fig. 1A). Takashima et al. does not teach that the bottle resin material is introduced prior to placing the core member and core mold into the body mold. Routine experimentation would lead a person of ordinary skill in the art to vary the order of performing the steps, particularly since the claim language is “including”, which does not preclude an alteration in the order of the steps. It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art to use routine experimentation to perform the steps taught by Takashima et al. in any order, depending upon the desired finished product.

Regarding claims 2-4, Takashima et al. provides engagement features (15); and a radial recess which is a groove (see Fig. 1B, between element numbers 6A and 7).

Regarding claim 5, Takashima et al. teaches that there is a gap between the core member (2A) and the core mold, which is at least 0.5 mm (column 4, lines 2-4).
